5) The Bye-laws framed under section 367(vii)(a) of the City Corporation Act for the maintenance of the drainage system in Bangalore. The Corporation have also included a clause for licensing all plumbers with a schedule or form in which the license has to be used to the plumbers in the same bye-law. Plumbers can only be licensed under section 367(ix)(b) and not under 367(vii)(a). It would be better if the bye-laws are split into two parts, one under section 367(vii)(a) and the other under Sec 367(ix)(b).

6) Clause 3(2) and clause 10 of these bye-laws framed under section 367(vii)(a) may be deleted and the rest approved.

7) The form of license shown under the e bye-laws has to be an appendix to rules to be framed under section 367(ix)(b). The form of application as noted should form an appendix to the bye-laws now framed under section 367(vii)(a).

8) It is seen from the bye-laws now forwarded that there is an idea of levying a license fee for every house connection taken. The people should be encouraged to take out underground connections wherever a sewer exists in order to improve the sanitation of the area. As such no fee should be levied for taking out underground connections. It may be stated in this connection that in Mysore, the City Improvement Trust gives one connection free to every house with the idea of encouraging the people to take out house connections.

9) The bye-laws may therefore, be referred back to the Corporation for amending them suitably.

(1) The Base Laws have been framed under Sec 367 (7) (a) of the Corporation Act for the maintenance of the drainage which covers appropriately under Sec 367 (a) (a) It would

But levying of a fee
would have the opposite effect
in Mysore city, the city Improvement Trust Board has been giving away
